

Prayer News update: November

Dear Friends,

Thank you for agreeing to support our latest project: Women of Migori. Our team in Kenya started the project on 9th September and I'm really excited to say that we are already making progress!

The past few months have been such a challenge for us all, so it's really special to be able to share good news with you. I hope that as you read this update you will see that there is so much potential for our farming families. With the training provided by our amazing team in Kenya and the support of churches such as yours, we feel really optimistic about this project!

Please continue to pray for these families and our team in Kenya.

Setting up the project

The project goal is to reduce poverty levels and build sustainable livelihoods of 9000 households!

In order to reach this goal, the team started in September by meeting with the community. This included representatives from the local and national government, as well as members of the community itself. From experience, we know that it's important to have everyone on board from the outset, so the team were really pleased to have several groups express an interest right at the beginning to join the project.

Another important aspect of setting up a new project is to make sure the team gets to know the area well. In their travels they have already identified two unprotected water springs (unclean water sources) which they plan to work on. Obviously making sure communities have clean water is one of Send a Cow's priorities, so we will be hearing more about how this develops over the coming months.

Making an impact

The team have wasted no time at all. They have already started training the farmers and have provided follow up visits to the farms. Can you imagine the sense of expectancy as families learn new skills and are hopeful of growing food on their own land? There's so much to learn, but with a few changes and a little bit of knowledge the transformation will begin!

Please pray

- Thank God for this new project and for all those involved in it. May he bless the work of their hands, may their farms flourish and the families thrive!
- Pray for the team as they build relationships with the families. All this work is based on trust so it's important that the families trust what they are being asked to do.
- Pray for the families in these early days of the project. Ask that they would be patient as they wait for their crops to grow. Pray that the rain would come at the right time and that it would be enough

You're invited to our Online Christmas Celebration

I'd like to invite you all to our special Online Christmas Celebration on:

Thursday 10th December at 6.55pm

We have so much to celebrate this Christmas and we hope that you will join us as we celebrate our work supporting farmers to combat the effects of climate change.

For further information and to reserve your free online seat, visit
